Odeon Capital Group LLC Expands Trading, Research Capabilities with New Southwest Office

NEW YORK--(BUSINESS WIRE)--Odeon Capital Group LLC (“Odeon”), the independent fixed income broker dealer with investment banking and research services, today announced the opening of their Austin, Texas office. Odeon’s new office will serve as a launching point for future sales, trading and research development across the Southwest.

“After thirteen months of success in New York, we are confident in our ability to leverage our expertise as we continue our goal of bringing the firm’s potential clients across the nation. This branch represents our first step in expanding Odeon’s full-service model.”

“We are excited to establish a geographical footprint for our expanding research and trading capabilities in a market as ripe with opportunity as Austin,” said Evan Schwartzberg, the CEO of Odeon Capital Group. “After thirteen months of success in New York, we are confident in our ability to leverage our expertise as we continue our goal of bringing the firm’s potential clients across the nation. This branch represents our first step in expanding Odeon’s full-service model.”

Wayne Crosthwait, a securities industry veteran of 39 years, has been hired by Odeon to lead the new office’s sales initiatives. Crosthwait, previously a senior vice president with American Physicians Financial Services Group, will coordinate high yield, corporate, structured product and banking sales out of the Austin office.

Since its founding in 2009, Odeon has built an extensive expertise in both traditional and esoteric asset classes, discretely executing both large and small-volume transactions. Odeon’s research team has successfully generated ideas and supported sales and trading with a focus on their institutional customer’s needs for customized information covering esoteric and distressed.
